From most of the persons with whom the committee has com nunicated, it is understood that there has been no diminution of the proceeds of duties on auctions during the last year. The statement, however, which has been received from the city reister, does not authorise the committee to state positively the act. In the report of the treasurer, it is seen that there was paid into the treasury to December 1st 1828, from these duties, the sum of $2,390 i7 cents. In that of the register it is stated, that from April 1st, to October 1st, there had accrued the sum of $8.076 i9 cents, and from October 1st, to January 1st 1829, the further sum of $2.700 ft. he further sum of 8 2,708 68 cents, which last under the city egulations would be payable the 1st April 1829. The aggreregulations would be payable the 1st April 1829. The aggregate of these three sums exhibits the whole amount accruing in the last nine months of the last year, to be $13,175 04 cents. If the product of the first three months of the last year was in the same ratio, the whole amount of duties would be $17,566 72 cents. It is supposed that a larger proportion than that allowed above, was realised during the first quarter of 1828, from the spring sales; but of that your committee can form no opinion themselves, and the register of the city having confined his report to the months succeeding that in which the law went into operation, the committee are unable, as before stated, to come eration, the committee are unable, as before stated, to come It would, however, appear from the amount of duties which

It would, however, appear from the amount or duties which accrued during the six months previous to the 1st January last, from six auctioneers licensed under the act of 1827, that if there have been a diminution in the receipts of the last year, there is reason to believe that in the present there will be a considerable increase; and some hope may be entertained, that the amount will be above the sum to be paid for deepening the harborn of the city of Baltimore. arbour of the city of Baltimore.

The amount accrued as above to the 1st January is 89,901 51 cents; and as a number of licenses from the city authorities did not expire until the close of the last year, and some of them extended to the present time, it may fairly be presumed, that when the whole amount of accruing duties shall be said into the treasury, a considerable revenue will be received from that source.

Your committee would, however, for reasons obvious to all Your committee would, however, for reasons obvious to all who are acquainted with the fluctuations of trade, recommend an alteration in the law, so as to require the payments to be made quarterly, instead of half yearly. The suctioneers have always been accustomed to that arrangement under the city ordinances, and it would be dividing the labour of the treasurer in examining the accounts. Several other smendments your committee are of opinion ought to be adopted, all of which are embraced in a supplemental law, which will be reported; and the committee trust they will be able so to explain them to the house as to satisfy the members of the propriety of the changes proposed.

The mayor of the city of Baltimore has accounted satisfacto-The mayor of the cify of Baltimore has accounted satisfactorily to the committee for the failure in furnishing an account, as directed in the 22d section of the law of 1827. Under the city ordinances the register is directed to call in all city accounts for adjustment by the last day of the year. The accounts when filed are audited by the city council, who assemble on the first Monday in January, and from their multiplicity cannot be finally passed on before the middle of the month, it was therefore impossible to meet the directions of the law to report by the first day of January, and it will be hereafter impossible, unless the city council shall conclude their fiscal year at a different period antecedent to the cless of the natural year.

Your committee have duly considered the last order, direc ng them to inquire into the expediency of repealing the 21st section of the law of 1837. Although it is plain, that there is a pleage given by the state to continue the appropriation of $20,000 annually, for keeping upon the harbour of this city of Baltimore, and that it can be discontinued when the legislature thinks, proper to do say it is nevertheless an interesting the legislature thinks, proper to do say it is nevertheless an interesting the legislature thinks, proper to do say it is nevertheless and interesting the legislature thinks, proper to do say it is nevertheless and interesting the 21st subject, reported a bill, entitled.
